

Site for Finding Images for Book Trailers

Flickr Creative Commons: <http://www.flickr.com/creativecommons/>

Pics4Learning: <http://www.pics4learning.com/>

Britannica Online (in MARVEL): <http://libraries.maine.edu/mainedatabases/kids.asp>

Morgue File: <http://www.morguefile.com/>

Be sure you have permission to use the photos.

If you're using a Creative Commons site, look for these symbols. These let you know that you have permission.

---

If you see this symbol:

or the term All Rights Reserved

it means the you may not use the picture without permission from the owner.

---

You must give credit to the person who took the photograph.

How to cite a photograph found online

Photographer's Last name, first name. Title of Photo. Date photo was taken. Photograph. Name of Web Site. Web. Date the photo was accessed.

Example:

Foley, Michael. Melting Snows, Mt. Everest. 2006. Photograph. Flickr Creative Commons. Web. 18 July 2012.

Photo citations should appear on a separate slide or frame at the end of the book trailer. If you use Animoto, type the citation in a Word document then save as a .jpg. Then add the page as an image at the end of the video.