

Site for Finding Royalty Free Music for Book Trailers

Bad News...

You may not choose a song from your iTunes library when you're creating a book trailer. The songs you purchase through iTunes or on CDs are copyrighted. You only have permission to listen to them and to put them on your personal devices. You don't have permission to use these songs for projects that will be posted online.

Good News

There are several web sites that provide royalty free music to students for school projects. Animoto has its own library of music where you may select a song for your video.

Royalty Free Music Sites

Jamendo: <http://www.jamendo.com/en/>

Soundzabound: <http://www.soundzabound.com/sabcs?terms=603>

You must give credit to the artist.

How to cite a musical recording

Artist or band. Title of song. Date recorded. Name of web site. Date accessed.

Example:

We Are FM. My World. 2011. Jamendo.com. Web. 18 July 2012.

The citation should appear on a separate slide or frame at the end of the book trailer.
